

Listen to the story and fill in the blanks with the correct word.

There was once a _____ teacher. Over the years, many students attended his classes. They _____ listening to his funny stories which taught students how to live a _____ life. Everybody said he was a great teacher.

When the great teacher was a _____ boy, he was a little different from the other students. He loved to _____ books and spend time thinking. He could easily _____ long stories and answer many kinds of problems.

As a student, he used to _____ a lot of time in his teacher's room. There were many books to read. He also liked to look at the _____ of big buildings on the wall and dream about _____ new places. There was also an old tea set with two beautiful cups on a _____ table.

While playing in the _____ one day, the boy hit the table. One of the cups fell to the floor and _____ into pieces. At that moment, he could hear the sound of his teacher _____ up the steps. He quickly picked up the _____ and put them behind his _____ so the teacher couldn't see them.

As the teacher _____ the room, the boy and asked, "Why do people die?"

The teacher was surprised by this _____. He answered, "Everything in this world must die. That is the law of _____."

"Everything?" asked the boy.

"Yes, everything" said the teacher.

The boy showed the _____ cup to the teacher and said, "It was time for your cup to _____."